

Skunk – Scared	What do you do when you're scared?
Many of us are very familiar with how skunks communicate when they're scared - they spray! Skunks have glands that store the spray. They release it when they feel scared or threatened in order to fend off any harmful predators!	When I'm scared, I...
Wolf - Happy	How do you show you're happy?
Just like the common dogs, wolves express happiness in a variety of ways, the most common being wagging their tails! They also communicate with a variety of howls, yips, and barks to share their happiness with their pack.	When I'm happy, I...
Whales - Love	How do you show someone you love them?
Some whales express love for others by gently touching fins and swimming together! You can see this often in mother whales with their babies.	When I love someone, I...

What are some other animal emotions that you recognize? Do you have some ideas on how certain animals might express themselves? Write it down below!

---

---

---

---

---